We are delighted to share our contribution to the "We Give Things a Second Life" and "Europe Together for Africa" projects.

Due to school regulations that prevent us from engaging in sales activities, we opted for an alternative approach that aligns with the project's spirit: a hands-on recycling initiative carried out on a Sunday surrounded by the natural beauty of our city park.

Thanks to the dedication of some students who are part of a scout group, we spent the day collecting materials and creatively transforming them into new objects. This experience not only breathed new life into discarded items but also sparked our creativity and strengthened our awareness.

In addition to this, during our school assembly titled "ECO - PLAY - DAY: the FUTURE is at stake", we organized several activities focused on environmental awareness and sustainable practices. These included:

- An Ecological Breakfast Open Lab, promoting healthy, low-impact food choices.
- A Creative Recycling Workshop led by an expert, encouraging students to transform paper and wastes into useful or decorative items.
- A Gardening Workshop in the school's green areas, fostering a direct connection with nature.
- Board and Team Games and Quizzes on Sports and Sustainability, blending fun with learning about sustainable lifestyles.
- Eco-themed film screenings to spark reflection and discussion on environmental topics.

These initiatives helped us reflect on our throwaway culture and the importance of making more sustainable choices. They also promoted collaboration, civic responsibility, and a strong sense of community among students and teachers.

In the following pictures, we present the activities we carried out and the dedication of our students.

We hope our contribution will inspire others to take better care of our planet!
