"THE WORLD AS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL GIFT THAT MAN HAS RECEIVED"

The nature surrounding the castle of Walzin

The first one is the castle of Walzin, in Dinant. The castle is located on a rocky peak on the edge of a river. As you can see, It is surrounded by nature. Quiet and peaceful, It's the ideal place to breathe the fresh air and get away from the city a little.

The Blue Forest

Located in the south-east of Hal, these photographs show a wonderful forest which is famous for their hyacinths, a sort of plants you can see on picture number 4. We can also see a doe in the morning sun. In my view, these pictures are radiant, given that I don't have the habit of seeing this kind of forest. Therefore, I wanted to show and share with you the beauty of it.

Park of the Boverie, Liège

This photo shows one of the parks near my house called "Parc de la Boverie". With its great nature, it is a great place for picnics and sports. There's even a water sports centre where you can go kayaking and rowing.

It's a natural setting in the centre of Liège, home to many hundred-year-old trees, plants and flowers endemic to our region. You can also see many birds and a multitude of rabbits running across the lawns.

Sunset in Ostende

My picture was taken on the beach of Ostende, a Belgian seaside resort.

The best moment to have a walk there is during sunset. When you see the sun go down and the sky takes on pastel colors and you hear the waves hitting the stones of the breakwaters or if you are in the sand just hear the waves coming and going. It's again a beautiful way to see nature, to enjoy the peace it brings us.

First prizes

The students whose photos were selected for the competition received a Chilly's reusable water bottle as their prize.

In this way, our school hopes to encourage students to adopt new eco-responsible habits by reducing their consumption of plastic bottles.

The world as the most beautiful gift that man has received"

Germany

The picture was taken this year on holiday in Corfu. We hiked for 30 minutes, at 34 degrees, along a very strenuous path with an extremely high number of stones and inclines, to finally see this view. The path almost brought me to my limits, but this view compensated for everything and fascinated me. There was something amazing about the clear colours and their combination with each other. Presentation of students' works

The earth element captured in the photo captivated me with its beauty, size and stability.

People often think they are invincible, but when they go to the mountains they experience how small they are. While walking along the paths leading to the peak, you have time to think during physical activity and take a break from the noise of everyday life.

The Earth is always there even when everything else disappears.

"Awakening"

The picture represents a small green plant growing amongst dead, dry leaves in a park near one of the main roads in Będzin. It represents the earth element. The picture really said something to me cause in some way it represented our minds. It represents our memories, a lot of them are very vague and hard to remember, but some of them just stick with us forever, till the end of our life.

Author Mateusz Jęczmyk

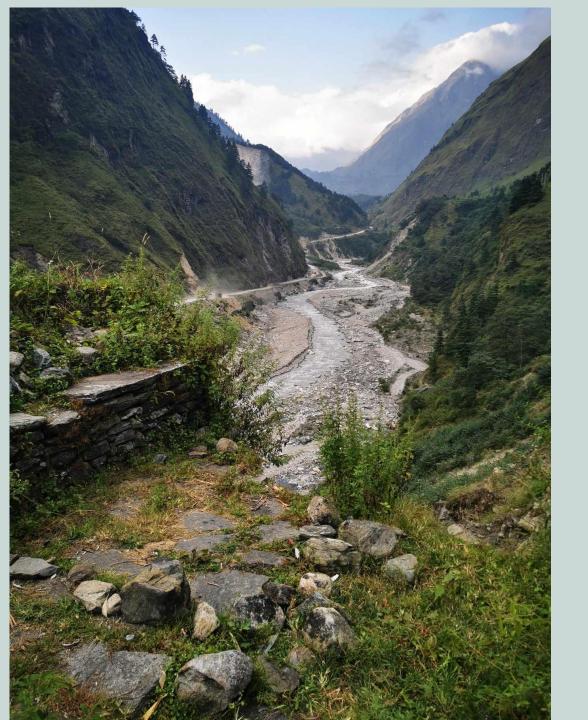

The photo is a forest during an early autumn walk. In my eyes, it represents the power of mother earth who feeds her children during spring and summer, and now she is a little tired and needs to start resting, which is a beautiful phenomenon for us humans.

Mother Earth begins to rest and feeds humanity with the fruits of the activity of the forest floor and in her rest she takes away the splendor of the trees, feeds people's eyes with colors and the last rays of the sun allow us to see the beauty of the crowns and trunks of trees which will soon fall asleep and in the spring thanks to the creative power of the Earth they will wake up, but now they show their best sides.

This view captivated me with the peace expressed in natural colors and chiaroscuro. My emotion is admiration because the Earth, even though it begins to rest in the fall, will still return to hard work in the spring in full strength so that ordinary people can reap the benefits from it (material, e.g. in agriculture and non-material beauty for the eye) all year round.

Nestled in Nepal's untouched valleys, the earth unveils its raw magnificence. Mountains, draped in verdant cloaks, stand as sentinels over a tranquil riverbed, each stone and pebble a testament to nature's intricate craftsmanship. The soil, a rich tapestry of moss and age-old rocks, exudes an aura of grounding and connection. Every nook and cranny in this landscape resonates with the deep, enduring essence of the earth, inviting all to marvel at its timeless beauty and strength. Author Franciszek Kruczek

Nature is the greatest artist. We've captured its beauty in pictures of our country and abroad.

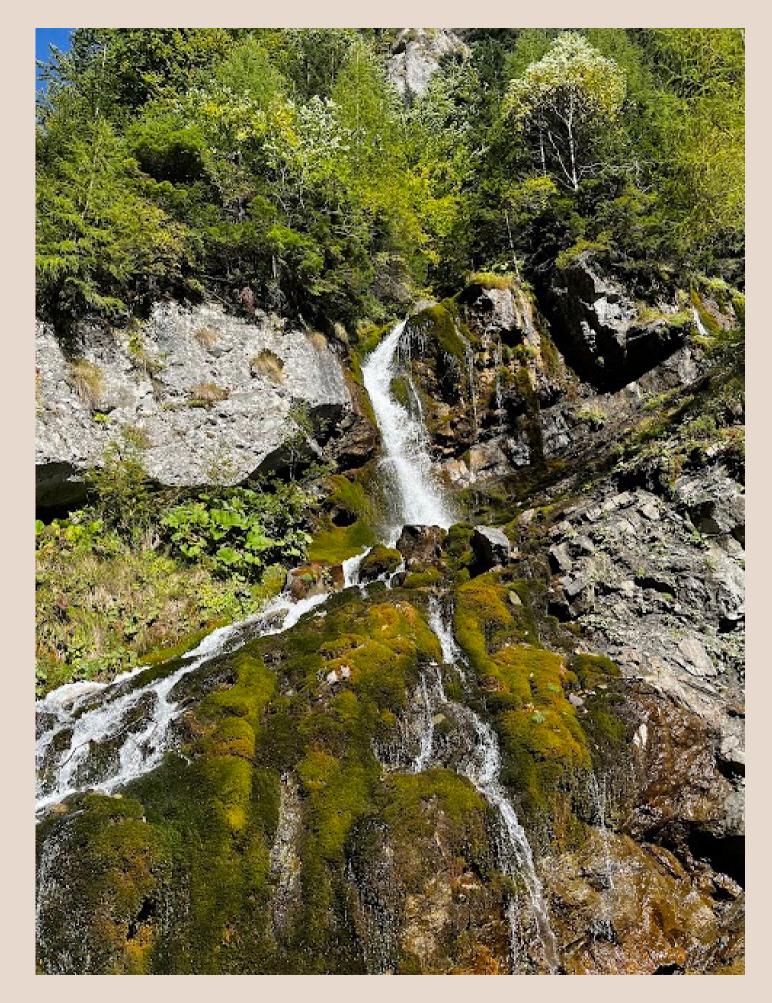

From the towering mountains to the vast oceans, nature has a way of leaving us in awe. Every sunrise and sunset is a masterpiece, every flower a work of art, every animal a unique creation. It's no wonder that artists throughout history have drawn inspiration from the natural world. As we continue to explore and appreciate nature's wonders, we can also learn to respect and protect them for generations to come.
